PASTOR IS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT
CAR FAILS TO TAKE THE CURVE AT INTERSECTION OF NORTH MAIN AND PARRISH STREETS.

Rev. O. S. Wilson, aged 40 years, pastor of the Methodist church at Swainsboro, met instant death Tuesday morning about 7 o'clock at the intersection of North Main and Parrish streets. The accident is said to be chargeable to a heavy fog which obscured the driver's vision. Driving his own car, a Chevrolet coupe, he was struck by a Buick sedan, driven by two other ministers, Rev. E. H. McGreggor, of Vienna and Rev. C. E. Smith, of Garfield, the party were enroute to the annual conference in Savannah.

In order to meet a committee engagement at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Rev. Mr. Wilson and his party had made an early start from Swainsboro, leaving there about 6 o'clock, and were traveling at a rather lively clip, estimated at perhaps 45 miles per hour. Suddenly finding that they were in the path of a car, the minister applied his brakes and averted only slightly to the right. The car, according to marks upon the pavement, traveled at least 120 feet after the application of the brakes, only one of which was effective. Sticking the curb in front of J. W. Franklin's residence, the car overturned and the driver was caught beneath his head being crushed into a shapeless mass. Death was instantaneous. The other occupants of the car were considerably shaken up but not seriously hurt. The car was badly smashed as it overturned on the sidewalk in the Franklin yard.

Rev. Mr. McGreggor called back to Swainsboro and after consultation with the family, directed the Statesboro Undertaking Company to take charge of the body and prepare it for removal. Several hours later the members of the family and some friends from Swainsboro came to take personal charge.

Rev. Mr. Wilson was completing his second year as pastor of the Swainsboro church. He was married and is survived by his wife and one small child. Rev. Mr. McGreggor, who was with him, is a son of Rev. W. D. McGreggor, former pastor of Statesboro. He was pastor of the Swainsboro church preceding Rev. Mr. Wilson.

Public Invited to Meet With Editors
The meeting of the First District Editorial Association at Statesboro next Monday is an important occasion, largely for the reason that Dr. Herty, well known scientist, will attend and address the occasion. Dr. Herty is well known to a good many persons in Statesboro, having been located here many years ago when he was engaged in perfecting the patents for his turnipette cup, now so generally used among turnipette men.

Any business men of Statesboro or Bulloch county who desire to attend the luncheon Monday, whether or not they belong to the Chamber of Commerce, may do so upon notification of J. E. McCracken, secretary. Application for dinner reservations must be made immediately.

REGISTER YOUTHS PLAN FOR FUTURE
WE'RE HOSTS TO FATHERS AND FRIENDS AT BANQUET LAST THURSDAY EVENING.

The members of the Register chapter of Future Farmers of America were hosts to their dads and a few visitors at a "Father and Son" banquet in the high school building there Thursday evening, November 12th.

Preceding the banquet a session was held to confer the "Green Hand" degree. A short talk was given by Mr. Saunders on the work of the organization. Woodrow Powell, president of the Register chapter of F. F. A., presided at the initial session. The other officers taking part were John Atkins, vice-president; Lamar Hodges, secretary; Clyde Hursey, reporter; Reginald Anderson, treasurer; Mr. Saunders, adviser; John Bowen, first conductor; Wilton Anderson, second conductor, and Herbert Powell, farm watch dog.

After the initiation the guests were ushered to the banquet hall which was beautifully decorated with Thanksgiving colors. Woodrow Powell gave a short welcome address, followed with a delightful meal served by the members of the home economics department and their supervisor, Miss Isabelle Clait.

The program for the evening consisted of the following numbers with Mr. Saunders presiding: A summary of the cash crops carried on the past year by the vocational agriculture class by Iman Akina; a summary of the supply crop carried on by agriculture class the past year by John Bowen, and a history of "My Animal Enterprise," by Reginald Anderson.

E. P. Josey, county agent, gave an interesting talk on the 4-H club work in the county.

Among the visitors present was Joseph Randall Toole, a young boy who spoke to us on "Co-operative Marketing as a Solution to Farm Problems."

The list of guests included J. L. Atkins, M. O. Anderson, John Powell, L. A. Anderson, R. D. Bowen, A. P. Josey, J. F. Reed, Joseph Randall Toole, J. H. Strickland and M. L. Brannen.

Among the safety devices for airplanes is a contrivance built into the seat of the plane. Should serious trouble arise, the pilot releases a lever and the passenger is dropped through the floor, the chute opening automatically. The passenger does not have to jump and is expelled into space without having a chance to get panic-stricken.

Tuberculosis Clinic Held Here Next Week
The State tuberculosis clinic will be held in Statesboro Monday and Tuesday, November 23rd and 24th. The clinic appointments are filled with thirty-two adults for examination, seven old cases for re-examination and forty-five children. Dr. Clara Barrett was in the county in October organizing the clinic, and while here 274 children were given 480 tests to detect the possible tubercular infection. Of this number 55 were definitely positive and ten more slightly positive. On account of lack of time those who were weakly positive to the second test will not be examined now, but will be taken care of at the spring clinic.

Because his estranged wife refused to permit him to kiss his baby, John Wildman, of Kiska, committed suicide.

WHO WANTS TO HELP?
Within one hundred feet of the Bulloch Times office, living in bare rooms from which the ash are broken, unlighted and unwarmed, there is a young mother in distress. As she sows from daylight till dark, making every old rag into a garment as brought to be made by those poor who are willing to accept such poor work as she is capable of doing, her eighteen-months-old fatherless child cries from hunger. Under nourished from birth, this child has never walked a step. Born after the death of his father, it has known only such nourishment as came from the self-sacrificing mother's labors. It needs food to give it strength and clothing to give it warmth. ## At The Change

A Critical Time In Every Woman's Life.

"During a critical time in my life I took Cardui for several months. I had hot flashes, I would suddenly get dizzy and seem blind. I would get faint and have no strength.

My nerves were on edge. I would not sleep at night.

"Cardui did wonders for me. I recommend it to all women who are passing through the critical period of change. I have found it a fine medicine."—Mrs. Hattie Murphy, Poplar Bluff, Mo. Cardui is a purely vegetable medicine and contains no dangerous drugs.

Nurse Maids Should All Have Health Certificate

(Georgia's Health)

Every effort should be made to safeguard the health of our children. Year after year our schools are striving more and more to impress on our minds the importance of our children being physically fit to meet the problems of school life. The health authorities are endeavoring to promote health by preventing the occurrence of disease. The sooner we put safeguards around the health of the child the better for the child.

Many mothers employ colored nurse maids to care for their babies and small children. A mother who does not think of employing a nurse who she knew had tuberculosis, because she realizes that her little ones are likely to contract tuberculosis from the nurse.

Yet there are other diseases which can easily be passed on from the nurse to the children. One of the most horrible of these is syphilis. It is a most treacherous disease and recognizes no social class. It respects no age group and will attack with its unrelenting vigor the innocent child.

Authorities tell us about 10 per cent of syphilis infection is contracted through means that may be classified as accidental. In a recent survey in one of our counties covering about 72 per cent of the entire colored population, syphilis was found in 35 per cent of the adult negroes. This means generally speaking one out of every three nurse maids in that county had syphilis. With the high infection in the colored race, we feel that it behooves us to warn the mothers against this possible source of infection for the children who are placed under the care of domestic servants.

Recently a refined and cultured family went to a resort to spend their vacation. A colored nurse was employed to care for the baby so that the mother too might have a better opportunity to enjoy the days of relaxation. A few weeks after their return home the physician was called. Something was wrong with the baby. The diagnosis of the physician was syphilis contracted from its nurse. A long course of treatment now is necessary to eradicate the infection which could easily have been prevented had the nurse been required to have a health certificate before being employed.

These instances are presented for the purpose of bringing to your attention the high incidence of syphilis and the possibility of it being transmitted in the most innocent way. The same can be said of some other diseases. We suggest that it would be a very good idea to require domestic servants to be examined for the presence of communicable diseases before considering their application for employment.

Consult with your physician about such matters. It will be economical in the long run, will relieve your anxiety and will safeguard the health of your children.

COUNTY SCHOOLS

Our many P.T.A.'s are fostering the fundamentals of successful schools this year. They are rendering assistance in getting into school a large element of children who are usually very indifferent and careless about going to school. Those who really can not help themselves are given due consideration by these splendid organizations. Should the P.T.A.'s put on a drive to urge early payment of taxes this movement would be of the most far-reaching influence to all else right at this time. As our cash crops are going to market, a sacrifice and an extreme effort to pay taxes among the first debts would be our own salvation. Why not take care of the children first and others afterward?

Payment of taxes will mean operation of our schools for your children. Recently when the New West Side School was checked for accrediting and special Barret-Rogers aid, there were but few faults checked against the school, supplementary readers being among the greatest needs. Careful school year has been improved but needs a great deal of attention at an early date to prevent further erosion. Already ditches are being cut that will soon be very expensive to fill. The water from the house should be carried away in winter lines or over the roof. Attendance is much better there this year than last. A better school in every way.

Recently an appeal was made to all of our schools to ask the children to help secure food for an orphanage in Macon which is non-denominational. As our school year has been improved but needs a great deal of attention at an early date to prevent further erosion. Already ditches are being cut that will soon be very expensive to fill. The water from the house should be carried away in winter lines or over the roof. Attendance is much better there this year than last. A better school in every way.

When I finished school after 4 years of about 6 months each, Jack Ivins was still plugging along. He developed into a good stink-base player—our favorite sport, and he could also out-run everybody else. He developed some neatness in his appearance and was kind to every one. When he went home in the evenings, he cut the wood, drew the water, milked the cow, held his mother's cow supper, and did all other chores that needed to be done about the farm-house.

After 4 or 5 years, Jack Ivins slipped out of my memory. I thought he had possibly remained on the farm and helped his poor old mother raise the other six children. I heard the other day that Jack Ivins was manager of a big mail-order house in Chicago—at only $12,500.00 per year. He left school when he got to be so big he didn't look right in a common school.

Jack Ivins and his folks moved away to a small college town. He got a job working in a store, but attended college also. He did anything that there was honor and a nickel in. He led his classes from start to finish. He was the best baseball player on the team. He graduated at the head of his class, and it turned out that Jack Ivins not only educated himself, but he educated 3 of his sisters, and everybody loves to claim the friendship and kinship where possible with Jack Ivins—the no-account boy back yonder that never kept his nose blown or his head combed.

A "ROUGH" IN THE DIAMOND
Hiram Brockson, like Jack Ivins, was a school-mate of mine, but he did not "mate" very much with me or anybody else—as the common run of boys and girls were not good enough for him. Hiram always came to school in a sailor suit, and he had a pocket handkerchief—that last named being an article practically unknown to school children—at that time.

Hiram had pretty curly hair, and it was kept well-trimmed. His mother or father always fetched him to school in a rubber tired buggy, but they never would let anybody ride with them—should they overtake anyone in the road. And if it looked at all like rain, Papa or Mamma or Jerry, the housemaid, would always trot up to the school house and take Hiram home a-whirling.

Hiram was awfully struck up. He poked fun at Jack Ivins because of his big brown biscuits and sorghum molasses, and ate his own lunch—egg custard, pound cake, boiled eggs, ham and sweet cakes—where everybody else would see what he had and their mouths would water. (I have known my own mouth to water for 5 hours after watching that bird devour a meal then fit for a king or a queen with plenty Jack.)

Hiram's folks always bragged about his brilliance and culture and told the teacher to be nice and pleasant to him at all times. He studied but very little and pouted very much. He jogged along and got through our country school by some book or creek, mostly creek. Nobody liked little "Smarty," as we all lovingly called him. We hated his pretty leather school satchel and his fine knit drawers and undershirt—the first most of us ever saw—and he kept us mad all the time, as we all lovingly called him. ## "NOBODY'S BUSINESS"

A DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH
I have been checking up on some of my schoolmates here of late. I attended an old-field, one-teacher, 75-scholar school, and wound up my educational career in either the seventh or eighth grade. I don't remember which, as very little grading was done back then—except good students and bad students.

Jack Ivins started to school the second year after my entry into the knowledge-seeking effort. They called him "Jack Ivins" for short. Jack Ivins was a little two by four runt, freckled face, white headed, knock-kneed, and pigeon-toed, and he never seemed to be able to keep his nose well blown. The rest of us tried to figure why anybody should waste time trying to educate him.

Jack Ivins had some good traits, but he was lazy and sluggish. He always told the truth and studied his lessons and obeyed the teacher. Nobody paid any attention to him. He ate his dinner at "big recess" in perfect peace and quietness. It usually consisted of a big biscuit in which he bored 4 big holes with his big finger—into which he poured some home-made sorghum molasses. That's all he wanted, and that's all he ever got.

When I finished school after 4 years of about 6 months each, Jack Ivins was still plugging along. He developed into a good stink-base player—our favorite sport, and he could also out-run everybody else. He developed some neatness in his appearance and was kind to every one. ## More than Indemnity

Your fire insurance dollar provides far more than you realize. Of course it protects you from financial loss in case of fire. But it does so much more that it ranks as one of the most effective dollars you spend.

Merely as indemnity, Stock Fire Insurance is one of the cheapest necessities. Its average rate has consistently declined for more than 20 years, until in 1930 it reached the lowest figure in all American fire insurance history.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

teaches better building practices—furnishes a service for the suppression of arson, another for the improvement of community fire defenses and conducts many general fire prevention activities, all of which have contributed to the reduction of fire waste and the loss of life by fire.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOME WORK

NEW GOVERNMENT BOOKLET TO AID UNEMPLOYED IS BEING OFFERED WITHOUT COST.

With the approach of winter, a strange contraption, just being introduced in this country, soon will be scooting across snow fields and icy lakes at 10 miles an hour. From the icy fields of the Scandinavian countries, the National Committee on Wood Utilization of the Department of Commerce has brought to America the so-called "Scandinavian Spark," consisting of a chair mounted on long steel runners, and propelled by the driver standing on one runner and pushing with the other foot.

This is just one of more than one hundred useful home and other articles completely illustrated in the new booklet, "You Can Make It for Profit," now being released from the Government printing office. Through representatives of the Department of Commerce, every country in the world was combed for ideas in the preparation of the book, according to Axel H. Oxholm, director of the wood utilization body.

The committee points out that expensive tools and elaborate machinery are not required to make the objects described in the manual. On the other hand, a few simple tools found in almost any home will be sufficient to construct the articles. Most of these articles, according to the committee, will find a ready market because they cater to the needs of individual homes and do not compete with commodities produced on a mass-production scale.

"You Can Make It for Profit," in the opinion of Mr. Oxholm, should be helpful to those temporarily unemployed. At practically all times there are some men out of work and those who find themselves in this situation could, with the assistance of the committee's booklet and a little initiative on their part, establish themselves in their various communities.

Speaking of home industries in relation to the farm, the booklet remarks: "About one-third of the nation's farmland is in the hands of farmers, and the development of home industries in the woodworking field, accordingly, would provide both an outlet for the products of farm woodlots and profitable occupation for the farmer during slack winter months."

Among the articles illustrated in

"You Can Build It for Profit" are racks for canned vegetables, clothes basket stands mounted on rollers; stairway shelves and utility racks; breakfast tables and benches; bathroom utility cabinets with laundry chute; built-in china closet and book case; fireplace bookcases; fireplace woodboxes; wood valances and wall paneling; storage chests; window seats and chests; garden furniture and toys.

The new manual, the third of a series of "You Can Make It" bulletins, in addition to plans, lists of materials, and instructions, suggestions for marketing the articles made for profit. It was written by H. Conrad Hoover, mechanical engineer of the committee and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., or from the district offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, located in leading cities. The manual sells for 10 cents a copy; $4 a hundred, or $40 a thousand.

TYNER WINS STATE LIVESTOCK CONTEST

Athens, Ga., Nov. 17.—Carrying on a rotation of cows, hogs and corn noted Harold Tyner, Bibb county 4-H club boy, $200 in money, $61 in prizes and won for him the state livestock championship from 19 competing clusters during 1931. For this achievement Harold will receive a gold medal, $50 watch and a chance to compete for sectional honors as a livestock farmer.

Young Tyner, in pointing out how his livestock projects were applied to farming needs, said, "I had the manure to use as fertilizer, the money returns to help carry on other projects, the skin milk and butter milk to feed to my hogs, they enabled me to raise all the meat needed on the home farm for four years, the cows furnished milk and butter for home use, and these projects not only introduced registered livestock on our farm but our neighbors' farms as well."

If this young farmer is successful in sectional competition, he will have a chance at national honors and a $300 scholarship. These prizes and awards are given by Thos. E. Wilson, Chicago, to 4-H club members to help stimulate interest in livestock.

James Porter was summoned for jury duty at Davenport, Ia., but failed to appear. When cited for contempt it was found he had been dead six years.

COTTON SEED MEAL FOR FERTILIZER

EXPERIMENT STATION GIVES FACTS ON VALUE AND USE OF SEED AND MEAL.

Many Georgia farmers are planning to use their cotton seed as fertilizer or to trade cotton seed for meal to put under their crops, according to G. A. Hale, of Georgia Experiment Station, who says: "Some will feed cotton seed or meal to livestock and use the manure as a fertilizer. The best fertilizer policy to pursue in 1932 must be worked out by each farmer to fit his conditions."

The statement issued on the subject is as follows: "Where livestock is available and the manure is handled carefully, the best returns from cotton seed or meal should result from feeding it and using the manure. Cottonseed meal has several advantages over seed as both feed and fertilizer. It is practically always best to exchange seed for meal. Most mills are now exchanging a ton of meal for a ton of seed."

"If seed is used for fertilizer it should be composted with manure or other organic matter or applied in the furrow and bedded on several weeks before planting. Cotton seed or meal is not a balanced fertilizer and should be used with superphosphate (acid phosphate), potash and readily available nitrogen carriers."

"Large amounts of cotton seed meal should be applied and bedded on several weeks before planting to hasten availability and prevent poor stands. Cotton seed meal is a slow acting nitrogenous fertilizer and has more effect on the top crop than the bottom crop of cotton. Under boll weevil conditions where the top crop is so important it is necessary to use it in combination with some quick acting nitrogen fertilizers as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia."

"The percentage of three common fertilizer ingredients, i. e., nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, is much higher in cotton seed meal than in cotton seed. One-half a ton of standard 7 per cent nitrogen cotton seed meal will contain approximately as many pounds of plant food as one ton of seed."

"The Georgia Experiment Station compared the nitrogen in cotton seed and cotton seed meal and other nitrogen carriers as fertilizer for cotton during the nine-year period from 1922 and 1930. The average yield of seed cotton per acre for the materials was cotton seed, 790; cotton seed meal, 750; one-half of nitrogen from cotton seed meal and one-half from nitrate of soda, 799; nitrate of soda, 798. In this experiment the fertilizer materials were applied so that each plot received the same amount of nitrogen. It was necessary to apply about twice as much cotton seed per acre as cotton seed meal. Therefore, a ton of cotton seed is equal to about one-half a ton of cotton seed meal for fertilizer.

"In another fertilizer experiment with cotton on clay loam soils the highest yields resulted from the use of a mixture made from cotton seed meal supplying about one-fifth of the nitrogen and nitrate of soda four-fifths. On sandy soils it is probable that larger amounts of cotton seed meal could be used to advantage."

Curb On Trucks To Save Highways

Thomasville, Ga., Nov. 17.—"Overloaded Trucks" is the subject of an editorial written by E. J. Jorger, editor of the Thomasville Times-Enterprise, in a recent issue of his daily paper which has attracted wide attention.

The Thomasville editor says the need for regulations that will, as he put it, "keep dangerous and injurious loads off the highways of the state or make the owners of the vehicles pay a proportionate sum in license fees that will cover the damage they inevitably do."

Mr. Jorger introduces his editorial with the query, "What do thirty-five bales of cotton weigh?" He then points out that the most "juvenile figure" can supply the answer when it is generally understood that a bale of cotton contains five hundred pounds on an average basis. Hence, the thirty-five bale load contains approximately 17,500 pounds, and with two thousand pounds to the ton, this is nearly nine tons.

"There are trucks and trailers that come through this city every day with loads of that size and magnitude, brought from Alabama or some other sections of Georgia," the editor says. It should be the duty of county authorities to check the load and license of such trucks, and if they violate the law they should be denied the use of the highways, in the opinion of the Thomasville editor.

A square mile of sand will furnish at least 3,000,000 horsepower, according to a professor of engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who is working on equipment for catching and storing this power.

"Holy" Fish

"Halibut" is derived from the Middle English word "hal" or "hail," meaning holy, and "butt," meaning a flounder, a kind of fish. The halibut was so named from the fact that it was widely eaten as a special holiday dish.

BULLOCH FARMER LIVING AT HOME

AMOS AKINS FINDS PROFIT IN GROWING CROPS FOR HOME CONSUMPTION.

(Written by Haynes McFadden, Jr., Field Representative Georgia Bankers' Association.)

Realizing that there is no profit in growing all cotton, W. A. Akins, who owns a 75-acre farm six miles from Statesboro, in Bulloch county, is a fine example of what can be attained through diversification. In 1930, he won the Profitable Farming Contest in the Statesboro district and won second place in the state contest.

This was sponsored by the Georgia State College of Agriculture, and the contest was held for the purpose of furtherance of safe farming in Georgia, and attracted the attention of agriculturists all over the state.

Mr. Akins' farm is a live-at-home, family affair, with no tenants. Every member of his family of eight has a specific duty to perform about the farm every day. His growing list crops, has a large garden and raises cows, hogs and poultry. Oats, wheat, corn, winter legumes, watermelons, peanuts and pecans are among his crops. He grew only ten acres of cotton last year.

Lincolnton, in his opinion, will be the salvation of the present-day farmer and one of his best means of support. Last year Mr. Akins made over $2,000 on his cows and hogs alone. He has thirty pure-bred milk cows which furnish milk, butter and cream to the local market and which, that year, was his own table. His Poland China hogs are his pride. He also has a large flock of Rhode Island Reds.

Another Bulloch county farmer who is a model of the live-at-home program is W. H. Smith, who operates a 300-acre farm ten miles west of Statesboro. He was appointed a master farmer by the State College of Agriculture in 1927. He raises all crops, but specializes in poultry on a commercial basis. His chickens net him approximately $1,500 per year. By planting winter legumes as soil improvers, he has increased his cotton from one-half to one bale per acre.

The farmers, bankers and business men of Bulloch county have united in putting over a safe farm program. As a result, practically every farmer of this section is self-sustaining. Live-at-home has been advocated and practiced here for ten years.

Mrs. Victor Adamson, of London, whose spine was fractured when she was thrown by a former mount of the Prince of Wales, will be a cripple all her life.

A. J. Miss, 65, completed a bicycle trip from San Diego, Calif., to Jacksonville, Miss., in 23 days and carried a 50-pound pack on his back during the long trip.

SIGN PETITION TO COMBINE OFFICES

LEGISLATORS ASKED TO FIX SALARY OF TAX COMMISSIONER AT $1,900 PER YEAR.

As a definite step toward carrying into execution the recommendation of the late grand jury that the office of tax collector and tax collector be combined, the office thus created to be known as tax commissioner, a petition is being circulated and largely signed among the voters of the county.

This petition is directed to the representatives in the legislature and is being circulated by H. J. Simpson, well known traveling medicine salesman. The petition requests that the salary be fixed at $1,800 per year.

Incidentally, while Mr. Simpson is not making a formal announcement of his candidacy for the office, he is circulating at the same time a card in which he agrees to accept the office if he is named in its duties for the salary specified.

Mr. Simpson was for a long while engaged in the mercantile business at Statesboro, and operated a restaurant and bakery here. Later he took to the road for a well known medicine concern and has in recent years traveled throughout the entire county. He is popular and competent.

"WHERE STYLE, QUALITY AND VALUE PREDOMINATE"

STATESBORO, GEORGIA

EDITOR'S MEET WELL ATTENDED

ADDRESS OF DR. HERTY ON THE SUBJECT OF CONSERVATION WAS FORCEFUL ONE.

Possibly one of the most worthwhile gatherings of which the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce has been host was that held Monday when the First District Press convention met in their thrice-a-year session.

While the attendance of the press crowd was not as large as had been anticipated, there were a dozen or more members of the craft in attendance, and the number of special guests brought the total attendance of visitors to twenty-five.

Mrs. Estelle Martin Rimes, president of the Press Association, had made plans for a worthwhile program, and those plans were carried through to complete success. Dr. Herty, one of the best known chemists of the entire nation, formerly well known here, was the chief speaker, and the things he said were interesting and enlightening. Another distinguished visitor by special invitation was George M. Rommel, industrial commissioner of the Savannah Chamber of Commerce. While he came only as an interested onlooker, his words of encouragement were forceful and pleasing.

Dan G. Bickers, of the Savannah Morning News, was present and had largely to do with making the occasion a success. In his paper of the day following we find this resume of the convention:

The feature of the First District Press convention here today was the address by Dr. Charles H. Herty, made this afternoon following the delicious luncheon served by the Statesboro Woman's Club, to the visitors and nearly half a hundred prominent men of Statesboro and Bulloch county. He reminded the group that while Savannah, in the First district of the state, has been chosen for the demonstration plant for developing the value of the slash pine pulp for the making of newspaper, yet the First district is far behind in the matter of carrying out the new P. O. A. plan. He urged that this district, county by county, join the ranks of those counties forming the P. O. A. associations, for the protection of the forests against fire. He went into detail to show the definite, conclusive accomplishment of the making of newspaper and other papers from pine pulp. He showed that the slash pine, and probably other pines, will in ten years or so grow to pulp wood size; that in the process of reforestation, done by nature if fire is kept out, the trees should be thinned—from 1,000 per acre, 800 can be thinned out and have a stand of 200 to do their best work toward naval stores and later toward lumber production; the thing is to keep the new forest growing, and to keep the old forest from being cut out of the woods. He said that recent weeks have shown the ravages fire can effect, and demonstrated that the protected areas are really protected—little damage having been done in any areas where the timber lands are organized under the plan offered by the federal and state government, whereby after the first year's cost trees can be insured against fire for three cents an acre a year.

Dr. Herty said he would not dare to predict what will come to the South in the next ten years if the forests are saved—in the movement of paper-making plants to this Southeastern section.

Dr. Herty was especially interested in his trip to Statesboro, at the invitation of Mrs. Estelle Martin Rimes. He said that he had been to Georgia Teachers College because thirty years ago in a clump of pines not far from the campus of the Georgia Teachers College he had demonstrated the use of his then new invention, the cup for gathering gum from pine trees—and was laughed at in the experiments. The demonstrations then given revolutionized later, the whole naval stores industry of the South and probably saved that industry to the South, for the boxing of trees was rapidly depleting the forests, whereas the cupping process Dr. Herty devised allows greater flow of gum and keeps the tree alive for repeated cupping.

The program opened at the South Georgia Teachers College this morning with the singing of "America" with the faculty, students and many visitors present. Rev. J. D. Peebles, pastor of the First Baptist church of Statesboro, delivered the invocation, which was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Margaret Turner, President of the H. Wells introduced D. B. Turner of the local paper, who in turn introduced the speaker.

RAILROAD TAXES 225 TIMES HIGHER

FAILURE TO PROTECT RAIL LINES SEEN AS DOUBLE BLOW AT PEOPLE OF COUNTRY.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 23.—The inequality of the taxation now being levied on railroads and competitive bus and truck lines by counties through which they run is strikingly shown by figures presented in a communication appearing in the Atlanta Constitution, and which, that paper makes the subject of an editorial— from Dr. W. B. Taylor, a prominent citizen of Dexter, Laurens county, Alabama.

That county, according to Dr. Taylor, receives from the railroads taxes aggregating $21,114.84 a year, out of which $5,774.45 goes for the building and upkeep of roads and bridges.

Against the heavy taxation, buses and trucks pay only $25.60 they would be exclusively in traveling through the county.

Thus the railroads, rendering exactly the same type of service as the buses and trucks and providing their own right of way and tracks are taxed 225 times as much as their competitors.

Failure to give the railroads proper protection by readjustment of the unfair taxation levied against them and their bus and truck competition will strike a double blow at the people of the country through the shrinking of values of securities and the necessity for raising taxes to take care of themselves, in their own words, the railroads and which they will be unable to continue to pay unless given protection from unfair competition." The Atlanta Constitution declares editorially.

People who brag about their ancestors are not very enthusiastic over evolution.

Methodist Pastor Returned for Year

It is gratifying to his congregation and the public generally that Rev. E. F. Morgan has been returned to the Statesboro Methodist church for another year. Rev. Mr. Morgan is completing his second year's pastorate here and during that time has endeared himself to the people of every denomination.

Other pastors assigned to Bulloch county churches are: Brooklet, Rev. A. Waite, returned; Portals, C. M. Infinger. Rev. H. P. Langlois, former pastor at Portals, was transferred to Soperton. Rev. H. M. Meeks was assigned to the new First Methodist church in the Statesboro district. Rev. Leland Moore was returned as presiding elder of the Macon district. Rev. J. E. Parker was returned to Cherokee Heights, Macon; Rev. J. M. Foster was returned to Richland; Rev. Mack Anderson, returned to Brooklet; Rev. T. P. Selbmann was returned to Stillmore; Rev. G. Reid Smith, former pastor at Brooklet, was returned to Wynnton, near Columbus.

Under our city election system, three councilmen are elected for terms of two years each, and two councilmen and a mayor are elected for the same length of terms. These elections alternate. Mayor Renfro and Councilmen A. O. Bland and Roger Holland were elected last year, and therefore have one year longer to serve.

It takes a lot of practice to make a saxophone do its worst.
